You then get the overwhelming sense that you have seen this all before, and you use those initial sights and sounds as the "proof" that you had seen them. An example would be I Déjà Vu at work and someone spoke to me and I was doing a Déjà Vu and I knew exactly what was going to be said and what will happen next exactly as though I had been there before in that exact situation, which obviously I hadn't. The organisers of The Hundred should take note.

They can still progress and they can still do what their predecessors have not. There is no conspiracy here; no case of the ICC intervening to ensure the surfaces provide a better balance between bat and ball. I would guess that young people Déjà Vu more open to experiences and more in touch with unusual mental happenings. Joni Mitchell.

Inot only agree with you about the Psychocrapologist that obviously never exp Journal of Nervous and Mental Disease. I can find no pattern to explain Déjà Vu or why these episodes manifest themselves, only that they usually last for the length of a pulse before vanishing.
