So it follows that if you look at the obstacles, you will probably hit them! The whole purpose of a syllabus in other forms of education is that knowledge of it can be tested at some point. Comment by Olivia DVSA posted on on 08 August Hi, Yes, to carry out the manoeuvre safely, candidates would be expected to slow down and stop if appropriate when pulling up on the right.

In order of difficulty, these are: the bay park, the turn in the road, the parallel park. Another problem is not selecting safe gaps in traffic. While reversing on full lock, the right-hand line of your parking bay will appear in your right wing mirror reference point C. Comment by Paul posted on on 24 August Even if I park on the farthest side where you obey the road rules and drive safely often everything else will fall into place. Why not take us for a spin?
