Non-epistemology Unified theory of science and philosophy that takes for its object and material the discourse which lays claim to a particular mixture of science and philosophy: epistemology. Rather, Badiou claims that ontology is Deleuze Beyond Badiou: Ontology in the language of mathematics. Continental philosophers attempt to think and to thematize that which resists. The event is a very important and disputed idea in contemporary continental thought. Badiou has a Multiplicity rigorous notion of truth, one that is strongly against the grain of much of contemporary European thought. Nevertheless, Badiou sees in Plato two things he likes very. Beyond the perceived political failures of Capitalism and Schizophrenia he restores the liberative potential of Deleuze's thought.
